Colombian Conflict (1964 -)

The Colombian conflict is really a set of conflicts and the peace agreements reflect both different processes relating to different conflict groups and dyads, and processes taking place at different times in a complex peace process history. The Colombian civil war has its roots in the late 1940s and the violent infighting between liberal and the conservative factions. Emerging from the liberal tradition with a thorough grounding in nationalist communist ideology, the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia—People's Army (FARC) began its armed insurrection against the Colombian government in 1964. Other left-wing guerrillas emerged as well, most notably the socialist/populist M-19, which would later be integrated into the formal political system in the peace process of 1990s; the National Liberation Army (ELN), which has strong roots in liberation theology, and the Maoist Ejército Popular de Liberación (EPL) (also part of the 1990 process, less successfully). Several stages of peace processes were undertaken by the various sides, which were further complicated by the emergence of right-wing paramilitary 'self-defence' forces. The peace agreement between the Colombian government under President Uribe and the main alliance of the paramilitary groups, the United Self-Defence Forces of Colombia (AUC), concluded in 2005 and is still heavily disputed as several remnants are still active, but now subsumed under the heading 'Bacrim' (Bandas criminales). In addition, FARC and ELN maintain a military presence, but both demonstrate a strong interest in completing successful peace negotiations with the government, with the most recent agreements being between FARC and the Government.

Civil society Page 1, Article 1,
Hold a peace summit in Havana, Cuba on 30–31 January to assess the effects, successes and obstacles in the dialogue process between the national government and ELN. The parties will invite representatives of Colombian society and the international community whose involvement in the peace process has made a significant contribution to its progress.

Hold five thematic forums outside the country based on the schedule below. The forums will take place between the months of February and June 2002 and will facilitate the exchange of initiatives and proposals on the following issues:
i. International humanitarian law 25–27 February 2002;
ii. The state and participative democracy, 25–27 March 2002;
iii. The agrarian problem, drug trafficking and the substitution of illicit crops, 29 April to 1 May 2002;
iv. Energy, mining and hydrocarbon resources, 27–29 May 2002;
v. The economy and social problems, 24–26 June 2002.

The locations for these forums will be decided by mutual agreement between the parties, taking into account the availability of the countries that are requested to host them. A maximum of 50 people will participate in each forum, including representatives of the government and ELN, six experts in each of the issues proposed, one representative of the Facilitation Commission and one representative of the Group of Friendly Countries, in addition to various guests involved in the process and with knowledge of the issues being discussed. After each forum, the parties will hold a rounds of talks to analyse and discuss the conclusions, which may then be used as inputs for the national convention.

To strengthen and streamline the actions and activities of the Civil Facilitation Commission, the parties will establish a mandate to ensure the commission's work is in keeping with the circumstances of the transitional period.
