Sudan Conflicts (1955 -)

Agreements relate to several distinct dyads, and also the negotiated independence of South Sudan, and subsequent internal conflict in South Sudan. Sudan-South Sudan. The long-standing conflict between the north and the south of the country dates back to colonial times, where the British introduced a so-called 'Southern Policy', severely hampering population movements between these big regions. Immediately after gaining independence in 1956, southern movements started to fight for independence; this fight became professionalised in 1983 with the foundation of the soon internationally supported Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA). When the Islamic Front government introduced strict sharia laws in the south after it took over power in 1988 the war intensified. A decade later, the military situation reached a stalemate, enabling internationally facilitated peace negotiations to begin in 1997. After more fighting, a final negotiation push began in 2002, leading to the signing of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) in January 2005.

Sudan-South Sudan post referendum. South Sudan became independent in July 2011; since then, relations between the two countries are complicated and violent conflict led by the SPLM (North) in the Sudanese Nuba mountains region has since intensified.

Darfur. Other long-standing violent conflicts are in the east and the west of the country. In the east, the Beja Congress, established in 1957, is the spearhead of a currently 'peaceful' opposition movement. In the west, the violent conflict in Darfur intensified in the early 2000s and rapidly gained international attention, even resulting in genocide charges against leading figures of the Sudanese government. The situation on the ground is complex, with over a dozen organisations (most notably the Sudanese Liberation Movement and the Justice and Equality Movement) fighting the Sudanese government and allied groups like the Janjaweed – although all parties have switched sides on numerous occasions. Several mediation attempts have not been successful, due to the shaky commitment of the Sudanese central government and the distrust among the armed opposition.

South Sudan - internal

In December 2013, after president Salva Kiir accused opposition leader Riek Machar of attempting a coup, violent conflict broke out between government forces of the SPLM/A and anti-governmental groups. In addition, several other political militias as well as communal militias have joined the conflict. In 2015 the Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan (ARCSS) was signed. Due to unsuccessful implementation the agreement was revitalized in 2018. In September 2019, Kiir and Machar agreed to establish a power-sharing government after struggles on forming a unity transitional government.

Description In 2002, a series of meetings were held in Pankar near lake Yirol by the New Sudan Council of Churches. The objective of the meeting was to identify the causes of conflict in the six counties and recommend practical measures to build and maintain peace. The violent conflict between sections and clans of the Dinka communities and with neighboring groups had become a cause for concern, generating a demand for swift and decisive action to restore security and peace. The meeting aimed to develop a shared analysis of the causes and aggravating factors of conflicts, identify opportunities for building peace, and agree on a program for follow-up action.

a) GOVERNANCE SYSTEMS

Recommendations:

1. womens' proportional representation must be put in place in all areas of decision making and implementation. If women are not involved, good governance can't take place. County Secretaries must take a lead on this. Additional training will be required for officials and NGOs;
2. training and upgrading of civil authority officials and administrators is essential and needed for improved systems of governance;
3. all executive chiefs, their courts and members should be closely monitored by the SPLM Secretaries so that all official public servants are working in a collaborative manner for the people they serve;
4. key law enforcement agents should not be employed to work in their own home areas so that family affairs don't interfere with the administration of law and order. The Regional Secretary is responsible for this initiative;

6. the police should be managed under SPLM Secretary's office only;
7. those who are sentenced (imprisoned) should serve their terms and produce enough food for their families and themselves. The County Secretary should provide land for this purpose;
8. traditional leaders and Payam Administrators should ensure that the system of Benywuut (cattle camp leader) be encouraged and reinforced;
9. Country Secretaries should be given clear and appropriate powers to assist them in executing their responsibility for the welfare and protection of the citizens (and be able to over-rule any decisions clearly not in the interests of the people);
10. if serious conflict breaks out, the local authorities should automatically seek the advice of notable persons from other counties/regions, so that solutions can be quickly found;
- ...
12. if there is any fight or conflict, the perpetrators must be arrested immediately - the responsibility of the County Secretaries and Regional Secretary;
13. a public war must be waged against corruption at all levels in the administration and in society. It is the responsibility of all to make the corrupt know they are corrupt;
14. the responsibility of the Regional and County Secretaries to ensure that all the SPLM structures are functioning and strengthened (such as the Boma and Payam liberation councils), so that checks and balances can be put into the system;

18. local authorities must work with all sections of the community in developing strategic plans for the development of the counties;
19. full job descriptions are required for all SPLM and county workers so that everyone will know what their responsibilities are;
20. while it is the responsibility of governments to look after the people, it is the people who should also help provide the resources to do it. Every administration must make an annual budget and present it publicly;
- ...
22. all revenue should be collected by the payam administrators and carefully documented so that the citizens can see what has been contributed;
- ...
24. financial management training is essential for all administrative workers and those involved in revenue collection and expenditure;
- ...
