Colombian Conflict (1964 -)

The Colombian conflict is really a set of conflicts and the peace agreements reflect both different processes relating to different conflict groups and dyads, and processes taking place at different times in a complex peace process history. The Colombian civil war has its roots in the late 1940s and the violent infighting between liberal and the conservative factions. Emerging from the liberal tradition with a thorough grounding in nationalist communist ideology, the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia—People's Army (FARC) began its armed insurrection against the Colombian government in 1964. Other left-wing guerrillas emerged as well, most notably the socialist/populist M-19, which would later be integrated into the formal political system in the peace process of 1990s; the National Liberation Army (ELN), which has strong roots in liberation theology, and the Maoist Ejército Popular de Liberación (EPL) (also part of the 1990 process, less successfully). Several stages of peace processes were undertaken by the various sides, which were further complicated by the emergence of right-wing paramilitary 'self-defence' forces. The peace agreement between the Colombian government under President Uribe and the main alliance of the paramilitary groups, the United Self-Defence Forces of Colombia (AUC), concluded in 2005 and is still heavily disputed as several remnants are still active, but now subsumed under the heading 'Bacrim' (Bandas criminales). In addition, FARC and ELN maintain a military presence, but both demonstrate a strong interest in completing successful peace negotiations with the government, with the most recent agreements being between FARC and the Government.

Description

This protocol establishes a technical mechanism (MVMV) for monitoring, verifying and overseeing the implementation of the bilateral ceasefire agreement between the Colombian government and FARC-EP. The mechanism operates at national, regional and local levels, with participation from both parties, international organizations, and civil society. It creates a comprehensive verification structure with clear roles and responsibilities for preventing and resolving potential incidents during the ceasefire period.

Civil society

The MVMV will be accompanied by the Catholic Church and the World Council of Churches in their ministerial work.

The Social Oversight of the Population, its Communities, and Grassroots Organizations, rooted in the territory as outlined in the Participation Protocol of the CFBTNT Agreement, will accompany and support the activities of the MVMV.

Social organisations agreed between the parties will contribute to the MVMV, with the aim of strengthening monitoring aimed at preventing armed incidents between the parties, reporting and raising the alarm about the presence of armed actors and armed actions against the life and safety of communities that may be carried out by any armed actor.

Social and citizens' organisations contribute through their autonomous monitoring activities to the situation of human rights and the observance of IHL rules in the regions and local areas defined by the MVMV.

This Mechanism will establish the procedures for interacting with this Social Oversight of the Population, its Communities and grassroots Organisations, safeguarding the security of the spokespeople of the population.

Participation will incorporate a special section focused on the role of these contributions, materialised in a protocol 'for the Participation and Social Oversight of the Population, its communities and organisations'.

This chapter will be implemented through territorial social organisations agreed upon by the parties.

Given their deep connection with the community and access to territorial information, they will be an essential and complementary element in the activities of the MVMV.

In addition, they shall provide information on the technical component of the mechanism responsible for carrying out the corresponding verifications in the territory, stressing the importance of the Social Oversight of the Population, its communities and its grassroots organisations.

The territorial social organisations will contribute to the MVMV in order to support the fulfilment of its functions.

The Mechanism will define the form of this contribution, respecting its autonomy and security conditions.
